Producer Profiles

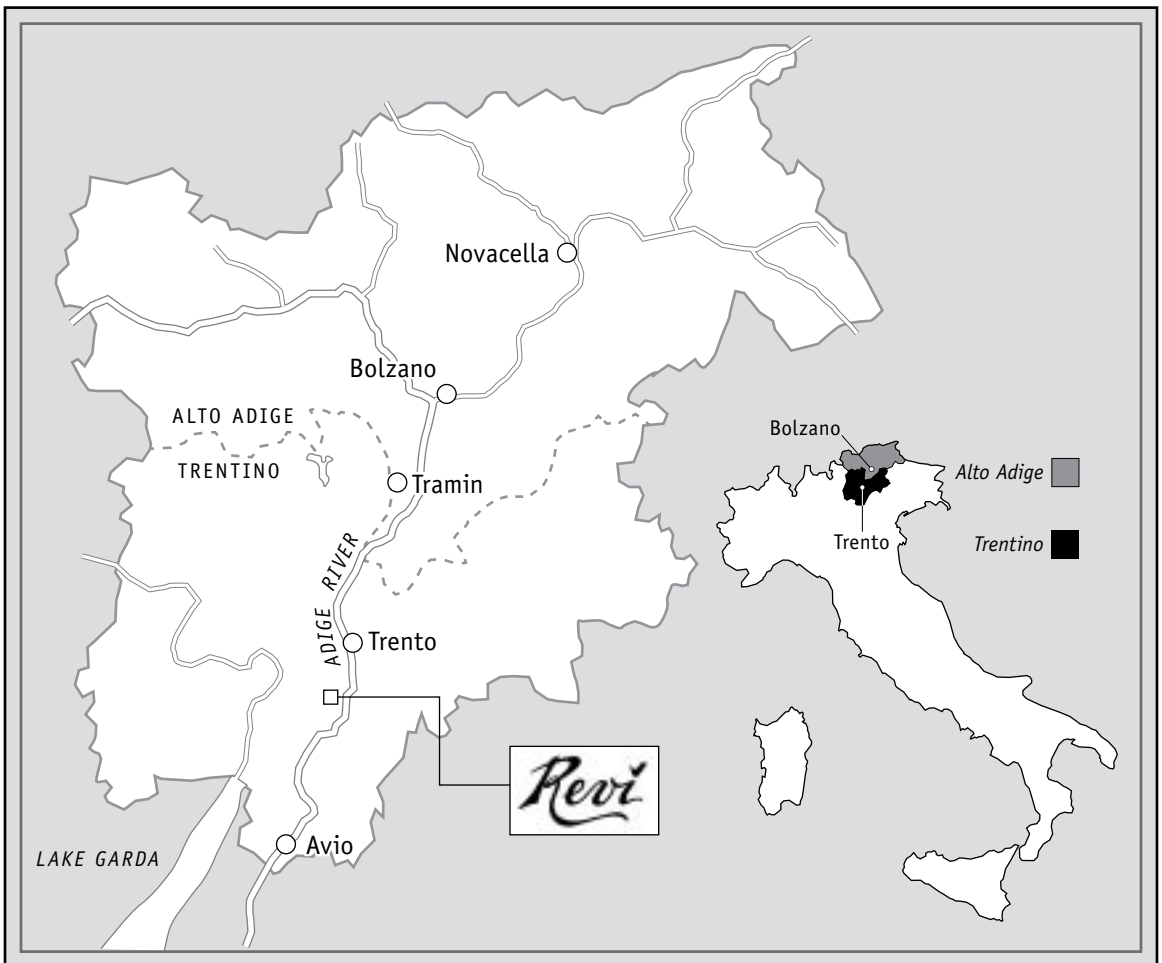

Paolo Malfer winemaker Revì.

Azienda Vinicola del Revì, Aldeno

Revì was founded in 1982 by Paolo Malfer after years of tests and trials with which he perfected the production techniques necessary to create a premium sparkling wine. The name Revì derives from the toponym of the production area which, according to legend, had vines of such a superior quality they were dubbed “King Vines”. Revì produces only sparkling, Metodo Classico, Trento DOC wines (TRENTODOC). What makes TRENTODOC unique are the Dolomite. The region’s alpine setting ensures pure, clean air and water, excellent soil, and a wide temperature variation between warm days (phenolic ripeness) and cool nights which preserve acidity (a key to freshness and structure, which allows a wine to gain character with age in the bottle). Beginning with a quality focused on care of the vine; the bunches are harvested by hand when perfectly ripe and immediately subjected to soft pressing, which allows a must, rich in aromas. The first fermentation is done slowly, at a low temperature, to ensure the elegance and delicacy of the aromatic components. The wine obtained from this meticulous process is then ready to become the prestigious TRENTODOC Sparkling Wine. Revì makes a broad range of styles from Dosaggio Zero (zero added sugar) to the off-dry Cavaliere Nero. See page 6

Producer Profiles

I Favati has been recognized as one of the outstanding Italian producers of fine wines. Located in Irpinia, famous for its beauty, its rich volcanic soil, and its wine, the company is expertly managed by winemaker Rosanna Petrozziello, her husband Giancarlo Favati, and her brother-in-law Piersabino Favati. This dynamic trio, along with enotechnico Vincenzo Mercurio and marketing specialist Carla Favati, handle every aspect of this family business – managing the vineyards, the harvest, the production and marketing. Their vineyards are located within the Fiano di Avellino, Greco di Tufo and Taurasi DOCG zones. Rosanna oversees each stage of the process assuring the best outcome of each cycle to guarantee the high quality of all wines produced. See page 5.

Zuani is all about the “cru”, or vineyard, on a gentle hillside where eleven acres of vines and gardens surround the Zuani cellar. The varietals planted are Tocai Friulano, Chardonnay, Pinot Grigio and Sauvignon. The challenge that winemaker and owner Patrizia Felluga along with her son, Antonio Zuani, have taken up is to make only wines that are genuinely typical of the region and the Collio, where it is unusual to find a blend. Zuani Collio Bianco comes from a conscious decision to make a wine that captures the fabulous aromas and structure of the grapes in their vineyards. The Zuani winery embodies the Felluga family winemaking heritage and expresses the fundamental unity of the traditional aspects of Friulian varieties with their more modern side. Zuani is Patrizia Felluga’s winery. The cellar applies a philosophy born of years of experience in vineyard and cellar, backed up by the knowledge acquired through Patrizia’s proven entrepreneurial skills. See page 6.

Cantina Palari makes Sicily’s most elegant wines. This small producer is located in the hills around Messina. Archaeological finds show evidence of wine production in the area since the fourteenth century BC. As owner of Palari, Salvatore Geraci helped revive northeastern Sicily’s tiny historic Faro appellation, where winegrowing had nearly become extinct. In a splendid 18th century Sicilian villa, Palari resumed production of this ancient and noble wine with the goal of finding, with the help of modern techniques, the qualities that made Faro famous throughout the world. Vineyards in Faro of Santo Stefano in Messina are planted with ancient indigenous grapes with evocative names such as: Nerello, Cappuccio, Nocera Tignolino Palumba, Acitana, Galatena, Calabrese, and others – all grapes that can go into a Faro DOC. His Faro (which means lighthouse) is a Tre Bicchieri winner. See page 13

Tenuta di Fiorano is a wine producer whose vineyards and winery are within the city limits of Rome. Its fame is directly linked to the late Prince Alberico Boncompagni Ludovisi, who, along with his winery Cantina Storica, has deservedly become a legend. Prince Alberico fell in love with winemaking between the 1940s and '50s and, in a pioneering move for Italy, decided to plant Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot for his red wines and Malvasia Candida and Sémillon, a novelty for Italy at the time, for the whites. Among the very few people who loved to visit him were his cousin Paolo Boncompagni Ludovisi and his son Alessandro Jacopo. Since Alberico’s death, Alessandro Jacopo has been in full control of the 200-hectare estate that aside from vineyards also has olive groves, cropland and pastures. The historic Cantina Storica with wines that Alberico jealously preserved was not open to any visitor. Out of respect, Alessandro Jacopo today continues this tradition. See page 9.
